Find Difficulties In Instigating Road Repairs

The Newmarket council's proposal for resurfacing and widening the present paved streets, introduced by Reeve A. D. Evans and Councillor Frank Bowser last week, met with problems at council meeting Monday night. No action has been taken by council yet. Legislation governing a local improvement plan offers a municipality four means by which it can put such a project into effect, none of which council finds convenient to employ.

In addition, acting town solicitor, K. M. R. Stiver, pointed out that by only one of the four means of introducing the public improvement plan can the town finance all the work proposed by Mr. Evans' motion.

A local improvement plan can be set into motion, according to existing legislation, by one of these four ways: a petition from property-owners, a plan by which council takes the initiative, a recommendation by the department of health on improved sanitation measures or another initiative plan whereby a public hearing must be called by the Ontario municipal board. If the last plan is adopted, property-owners may petition against the project.

Only by the first plan can all work recommended by Mr. Evans and Mr. Bowser be financed by a local improvement plan. Their recommendation was for widening and resurfacing present paved streets and construction curbs, gutters and storm sewers.

To undertake all the desired construction, the petition plan must be, adopted. This would these streets.

Newmarket Takes Lead To Call Municipalities For Metropolitan Talks

Newmarket took the initiative Monday night to sponsor north York county municipal discussions on Toronto's possible annexation of suburban York communities. Introduced by Deputy-Reeve J. L. Spillette, a motion was passed by council to call a meeting of reeves and deputy-reeves of all the municipalities which have not been included in the greater Toronto annexation move, to discuss the resulting financial position of those municipalities in the event of annexation.

The word "conservation" is capable of many interpretations. Among farmers, it is the conserving of soil values and water supplies. Among sportsmen, it is the conserving of fish and game. from Richmond Hill to renew her subscription to the Era and Express for two years, and enclosing two old pictures which she clipped from early issues of the paper. Unfortunately we will be unable to reproduce them unless the original photographs or the plates can be located. However, the names of those photographed will be of interest to the older readers.

The first photograph is of the Newmarket Bicycle club of 1887 with the members lined up on their bicycles with the huge front wheels and small rear wheels. Names of the members photographed are: George Bastedo, Edgar Bogart, James Lowe, Lou Keliman Tom Watson, George Hewitt, Bert Cane, Walter Sutherland, Al Binns, Johnny Hughes, Henry Lowe and Frank Millard. The members of the club are wearing grey uniforms.

The second photograph is of the Newmarket Citizens' Band of 1883 and was taken at Niagara Falls. Amos Hughes was the leader of the band. Photographed with him were Fred Saxton, Mr. Dales, Silas Soules, N. J. Roadhouse, Bert Cane, Stanley Scott, Mr. Doan, Fred Bogart, James Moffatt and Mr. Hilborne. The members of the band are wearing broad-brim hats, long coats with brass buttons.

It was thoughtful of Mrs.

Mrs. Louise Reilly writes Reilly to send us the clippings and we hope other readers who have old photographs, early issues of the Era, and other mementoes of the past will loan them to us because in the next two years, the Era and Express will be celebrating its 100th birthday. It's early of course to forecast our plans for that year but we are certain of our need for all old pictures and other matter which will help us recreate the story of Newmarket during the paper's lifetime.

> Quite often, clippings from the Era and Express are found in attics and old trunks. They are frequently thrown out because the finders, having no interest in them, know of no value to them nor of a place to send them. We would certainly appreciate it if such clippings were sent to us. Old papers are particularly important. There are gaps in our files and often, these old papers help fill them.

A few months ago, a weekly contemporary, celebrating its birthday, put forth claims to being the oldest weekly paper in Canada. And in the next few weeks, the editorial columns of a dozen or more weeklies buzzed with counter-claims. We don't know how the age of the Era and Express compares with other weeklies but we must be among the ten oldest in Ontario.

The Editorials:

Keeping That Community Spirit

The installation of artificial ice in the Newmarket Community Memorial Arena was first and foremost an expression of community spirit. There was evident while the job was underway a strong sense of working together in a common purpose which would benefit the community. Such a community asset as this spirit is a precious thing, but unless it is constantly exercised, it will evaporate.

In recent years, there has been little evidence of a community spirit. The artificial ice project marked its rebirth. The question is: The job done, will that willingness, that ability to work together and share in a common purpose, again be lost or can it be exercised upon other projects?

There is certainly no lack of possibilities, foremost of which is a swimming pool. Newmarket has the sites-a choice of several including the proposed site on Bogarttown creek—and the know-how for a job like that. All that is needed is leadership, official endorsement from the council, and a demonstration of the same kind of will to help that brought artificial ice here.

But let us not make the mistake of letting the same men do the job. Well over 100 men and boys bent their backs and blistered their hands in manual labor at the arena, not to mention the countless others who gave time and thought to the planning and organization of the project. Let's give them a rest. There are plenty of others willing and able who for one reason or another were unavailable for the arena project. Given the chance, we are willing to bet that they could sink a swimming pool in jig-time if the job were undertaken.

Size Is Penalized

A potential water shortage in North York twp. has forced a halt in the extensive building programs under way in the municipality. The township has appealed for help from Toronto. At the time of writing, little hope is offered by the city.

North York township's situation is part of the same general condition which inspired Mayor Hiram McCallum to suggest in all seriousness that guests at hotels in Toronto be taxed for their use of hotel rooms. Toronto has become so large that it has become an uneconomical operation. The city's growth has exceeded the ability of its residents to pay for its services. Size has strained North York township's ability to supply water. And while a way will probably be found to alleviate both situations, the relief will at the best be temporary if both municipalities continue to grow. At the same time, fresh problems immediately related to growth will continue to plague them.

There are limits to the size of municipalities, limits placed by the ability of citizens to pay for services, and by the ability of the municipality to provide adequate facilities. The idea is still firmly entrenched in the minds of many that as population expands, the increased number of citizens can finance their own share of municipal services. That is folly of the worst sort as the example of Toronto and North York indicate.

There is only one answer to Toronto's and North York's problems: a policy of decentralization which would distribute the populations of those two centres, and all other centres whose growth has mushroomed beyond the limits of common sense, over a larger area. Municipal governments are becoming planning conscious but they have yet to encourage a forthright policy which extends beyond municipal boundaries. The spread of industry into small centres is an encouraging indication, but the situation of Toronto and North York shows that decentralization must be encouraged to move far more rapidly than it is now.

Historical Sites

The article upon the development and maintenance of historical sites in last week's issue of The Era and Express has caused much comment. "We have driven by the Friends' Meeting House on Yonge St. almost daily and never before realized that it was anything other than a farm building," we were told by one. Another expressed surprise that Holland Landing pre-dated Newmarket. "We had always thought the name came from the Dutch farmers on the marsh."

There were other comments, expressing enthusiasm for a program of renovation of historical sites, offering suggestions as to how this was to be done. It was felt by a few that the major problem was to arouse sufficient local interest in historical projects. We doubt if this is a serious difficulty. There are many in Newmarket whose relationship to early pioneers in this district has encouraged a strong interest in historical sites. The Women's Institutes have been at work on historical projects for many years; the members represent an important group who in all likelihood would support such a project.

It seems to us the difficulty locally lies in lack of leadership and direction. The interest is there: what is needed is an organization which could encourage that interest towards a concrete objective such as marking historical sites, renovating landmarks, building up historical collections. There is a county society but it attracts few members from this area. Possibly, a Newmarket and district branch of the county society might be the best form such an organization could assume.

We would welcome any further suggestions along this line. Although there appears to be an awakened interest in historical matters in the provincial government, the real direction should come from local groups.

Another Trade Problem

Mica is an invaluable war material. It is essential as an insulator in radio tubes, radar equipment, condensers, airplane sparkplugs. Last year, the United States produced only 135 tons of mica and had to import another 10,000 tons from India and Brazil. Last week, it was announced in Washington that scientists had found a way to make synthetic mica. There is much to be done before the process can be used commercially but when it is, it will mean that the United States will have become self-sufficient in still another product and Brazil and India will lose their U.S. market.

The United States has achieved self-sufficiency in many thousands of products which were formally imported from abroad. As a scientific achievement, it is without equal. Its impact upon world trade, however, does not draw cheers. The United States produces large surpluses of goods which are marketed abroad. Those nations who produce U.S. goods carned the dollars for their purchases by sales of their goods to the U.S. As the U.S. achieves its high degree of selfsufficiency, those sales become increasingly smaller and correspondingly, the purchases from the U.S. must become smaller, although the need for U.S. goods con-

Trade must function in two directions if it is to be maintained and be profitable. When to the protective tariff barriers which the U.S. has erected is added the additional handicap of self-sufficiency in an increasing list of products, trade ceases to be a twoway affair, but becomes one-way only with the U.S. pouring out its goods to countries able to pay for them only by credit. When that credit is withdrawn, as it must be sooner or later, both U.S. and its customer will suffer,

Editorial Paragraphs

Substantial contributions were made by Newmarket industry to the recent Hospital for Sick Children building appeal. Some of the contributions, made before the organization of a Newmarket campaign committee, went directly to Toronto without acknowledgment in Newmarket. Industry generally is a generous contributor to such campaigns reflecting considerable credit upon local management.

The conferring upon Mr. Dewey Kuhns of an honorary citizenship in Newmarket as a mark of appreciation and respect for his efforts towards the artificial ice project was an act which has the whole-hearted approval of the town. Mr. Kuhns is comparatively new to Newmarket but he had made himself very much a citizen by his active interest in the community. His honorary citizenship confirms what has long been unofficially acknowledged.

The honorary citizenship conferred upon Mr. Dewey Kuhns establishes something of a precedent in Newmarket. As far as the town clerk, Mr. Wesley Brooks, is aware, this is the first such honor ever granted by Newmarket. Just what the "rights" and "responsibilities" of an honorary citizen are is not recorded. We are sure Mr. Kuhns will regard them well, whatever they may be.

A group of people are embarking for an island sancutary where they can escape the regimentation imposed upon them by present-day living. This is a dangerous trend. There are not nearly enough islands.

The state is the servant, not the master, of the people; the state is their guarantee against infringement on their rights, their agent in international and national issues; it is not the function of the state to assume the direction of those activities which rest on individual choice.

Office Cat reports Catnips By Ginger

We had guests for the weekend. During the course of an evening's conversation we talked of man's proposed trip to the moon. From scientific sources we learned that as soon as man can harness atomic energy and use it in a rocket ship, flying to the moon will be a piece of cake, I should say, feasible.

One of our guests pondered about the idea and declared that if someone tapped him on the shoulder and said, "We are going to the moon tomorrow,' he would accept the offer. How could he say no?

The prospect of a Gingerian trip to the moon caught my immediate fancy. I should be able to copyright a story on such a lunar expedition and live off the fat of the dividends for the rest of my life. Sensing my thoughts, my better half, Isabella, sent forth a volley of reprimands suppressing my dreams of an astral expedition. My insurance would not pay off, she said. Females always must bring in reality to destroy all enjoyment of the freshness of the male mind's occasional fancy.

Our discussions pressed ever farther into the realm of infinity, beyond the moon until we were puddling along in our rocket ship on our theoretical way to Jupiter and Saturn and such places We would even pause to discuss motor trouble in the right steering rocket.

"Man the starboard auxiliary!" someone shouted and we were on our way again. Many problems arose. There was no gravitational pull of any account and loose articles would not stay on the floor of the space ship.

Pencils and papers floated around in the rocket control room. Someone poured out a pitcher of water and it disseminated into space in tiny droplets. When we washed the dishes, we set them in rows two feet off the floor to dry. It's a good thing we had our magnetic boots or else we wouldn't have been able to keep upright. We were forced to turn back to earth, however, because meteors and shooting stars were increasingly difficult to dodge.

No one else had ever landed a rocket ship before. The problem became more and more heavy on our minds as we accelerated toward earth again. The gravitational pull towards earth increased our speed at an alarming rate and of course, our ship had no wings to enable us to level it off for a horizontal landing. Faster and faster dived the ship toward earth and closer and closer we came to this ticklish problem. Our altimeter registered 10,000 feet and suddenly there was a rending crash.

Isabella served coffee and sandwiches.

by "Back Concession" The Top Six Inches

We hear a faint echo of "we fact is, we have been played told you so" from those who are against all kinds of control and in favor of free enterprise and competition. Our government control and farm price support and floor prices have not worked out too well. We farmers did carry out our part. Those who sold grain on the prairie when the grain exchange was in full control of buying and selling, can remember many an unpleasant thing.

But why look back? Let us look forward for a change. has been said if you want to succeed you must study copy those who are a success. We are told that overseas Canadian manufactured goods are sold a lot cheaper than in Canada. The price level is held in the home or domestic market so that the exporter can meet competitive prices.

Do we need a controlled farm economy in Canada? Our strongest farm groups in Ontario is the whole-milk producers. Would or could this group take over the whole milk, butter and cheese industry as one group, the hog, beef and sheep producers another, poultry and turkey, vegetables and fruit, grain producers. This would give us four farm groups. In the army the food rations were figured out within a very few pounds of what a battalion needed for a day. Our home or domestic market could be estimated and a quota given each farmer.

Our export farm produce price sets the domestic market price. Not so with our manufactured goods. The home market price level is held high enough to show a profit and export can be sold lower. Why should part of our Canadian economy work in direct reverse to the rest?

To say that it is the farmer's fault that these things are, would, we think, put it too mildly. We farmers allowed our produce during the war to be sold below world price level with the expectation that we would receive a price in the post war that would compensate us for our loss. The hard for — there is a word but it looks bad in print. We think the first lesson the farmer must learn is to stop saying "they" and say "we." We means each one of us is willing to do his part. Those farmers who are capable of leadership should come forward, the rest of us consider what would be right for each farmer to contribute in money. Twenty-five years ago the whole milk producers' association was only in the minds of a very few men, nearly a lifetime of work. One of the hardest things leaders in any project have to contend with, is to try and think for the people. Every farmer plans for his crop and breeding program and the way of least resistance was to let the government handle our produce. If we are capable of planning our farm work, why not plan for our marketing? We farmers pride ourselves that we are great individualists. We know how and when to do our work, and up to the farm gate we are really smart.

But the mess we let our marketing get into is far from anything smart. Do we need a farm union to tell us how to control a farm economy. Or has our federation of agriculture enough leadership? There is a question as to who is at fault, the farmer for not giving the federation enough support or the federation for not giving proper leadership. One thing that we farmers cannot expect is for someone else to plan and market our produce, take all the responsibility, pay all the expenses and let all farmers receive all the benefit.

We don't like what has happened to eggs and bacon and we don't want to pay into any organizations. We don't want to work on a quota and be told how much we are to produce. We don't want to leave the warm fire at night to go out to any farm meeting; while some are doing all right and don't care about others. Do we need labor unions to tell us how? Cheerlo.

THE LANDMAN'S BEST RESERVOIR

The editor: This is a letter which I have intended for two years to write.

The required inspiration was found when reading your account of the speech delivered by Mrs. Myrtle Purcell before a meeting of the Home and School Association. The whole text of Mrs. Purcell's address · was very interesting and very worthwhile, but I was particularly interested in her reference to the "far from ideal matinee material" offered as entertainment for our children.

This has long been a source of worry and irritation to me, but as long as the currently popular lurid "westerns" and crime shows continue to be so wellattended and therefore profitable, and are not protested, then they will continue to be billed Saturday after Saturday. For this reason I felt it would be futile for one lone mother to approach the theatre management regarding a change of policy, so I did nothing except prevent my children from attending the movies except on the extremely rare occasions when a picture suitable for youngsters was advertised. As a result, the children see a movie on an average of three times a year, and as they grow older, are beginning to feel rather abused in that respect.

Now it has been suggested that a committee be formed of representatives from women's organizations to work with the local theatre manager in obtaining suitable matinee material. I heartily endorse this suggestion and do hope that all other mothers who feel as I do in this matter will speak now in unison, so that we may be heard.

A great constructive, educational-inspiring influence could be brought to bear on our youth through the medium of the theatre and the use of desirable material.

> Mother of Two, Mrs. K. C. Rusnell.

Editor's note: We have been in touch with Mr. Robert Jack, manager of the Strand theatre, regarding matinee material and he draws attention to limiting factors which, so far, cannot be easily overcome.

The Strand recently showed John Steinbeck's Red Pony, a story of a boy and his love for a pony and the lessons he learned from his relationship with his pet. The locality of the film was the west but the picture was not a "western" in the usual sense of the word. There was no shooting, for example, no chases between the sheriff and the rustlers or stage-coach robbers.

As far as the children were concerned, the picture was a failure. The children lost interest completely and spent a large part of the afternoon wandering up and down the aisles. Yet the picture was considered ideal for children.

Mr. Jack has other instances when the same difficulty arose; pictures from which children could derive educational and inspiring entertainment were ignored. Only those pictures where there is plenty of wild and woolly action seem to attract the children's interest. The effect of this situation is that the theatre manager is limited in his choice of films by the desires of his audience.

Who Are They Supporting?

The Financial Post

Despite the best efforts of their own and other advertising authorities, Canadian businessmen throw many thousands of dollars away each year on what James C. Lightbody in the current issue of Marketing bluntly terms "support" rackets. These schemes range from moderate contributions to souvenir programs which nobody sees, to much larger handouts to special publications or services ostensibly set up to fight communism or perform some other work.

"It is hard to kill the old idea that newspapers must be patronized by means of advertising," remarks the writer in Marketing. "There are still businessmen who regard advertising mainly as a handout to the papers." There may have been some slight truth in that in the old, old days but it is not so today. Real advertising like any other quality product is sold on the basis of value received. "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours," has no place in modern merchandising.

Marketing concludes its article with this sound bit of advice:

"Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce and other centres scrutinize appeals for advertising and report to their members. The object of such reports is to acquaint members with the facts and let them act for themselves. If businessmen would accept this guidance, the cause of legitimate advertising would receive considerable assistance and much money would be diverted from spurious to recognized media."

Mrs. Purcell mentioned a Children's Film Library as a source of good matinee material. Most of them have been shown at the local theatre; few of them fall within the class of film which experience has shown will hold children's attention.

The letter printed above expresses, we are sure, the opinion of a good many mothers, and Mr. Jack has assured us of his complete willingness to co-operate to the fullest extent with any committees which may be formed. He suggests, however, that the limitations upon his choice of material, established by the desires of the children themselves, is not a factor which can be easily overcome.

Tch tch gentlemen! We are told that last Tuesday night at the Aurora Board of Trade meeting, tempers reached the breaking point during the discussion about the new site for the Hydro substation and office. On Thursday evening Louis Bromfield, newspaperman, author of a number of best sellers and a veteran himself, spoke to a gathering in the Sunnybrook hospital auditorium after having completed five previous addresses on that same day. Needless to say the man was exhausted and practically talked-out, but his relaxed manner and fluency made it remarkably easy to listen to him. theories of specialization which he so strongly advocates for the farmer with a large acreage do not apply to the man with five acres and less. For him, the practical thing to do is to attempt OHA convention at Niagara Falls to raise as much of his family's food needs as is possible. For all that his family can enjoy during the summer months fresh from the garden and later quick frozen or canned and preserved for winter use is a direct saving in food expenses. This is an established fact tried, tested and proven in Newmarket where so many grow their own vegetables and make use of the locker storage units. Mr. Bromfield said that proper soil maintenance was essential not only for maximum yield, but for top quality produce. More and Better Service for More People

LAST YEAR, our installers added 138,000 new city and farm telephones . . . telephone users placed over 10 million calls daily . . . service was faster, better in every way.

It took lots of work and lots of money.

Money for more telephones, buildings, switchboards, wire, cable, poles. Money to pay fair wages to 28,000 telephone men and women. Money to pay a reasonable return to the 58,000 Canadians who, by investing their savings in the telephone business, have made its expansion possible.

Despite all we were able to do, 1949 ended with thousands of people still waiting for telephones and with many needed improvements still to be completed.

Only a financially healthy company con carry out the big job yet to be done. Telephone users, employees, shareholders — everyone has a vital interest in a service that means so much to the welfare of so many people.

entry, Hoffman Rockets, into action. Word received Wednesday of this week is that our juveniles have drawn Elmvale in the first round. The opening game of home and home, goals to count, series is slated for attention at the arena on Tuesday of next week. Game time is 9 p.m. These juveniles of ours are our future junior and Metropolitan League squads. They are playing a fast skating, slick passing, crowd pleasing hockey and deserve your support. Let's see if we can get a good house for them. The return game is booked for Stayner, home ice of Elmvale, on Thursday, Feb. 2.
